Welcome space-explorers!

If you're into Lego/block building, check out these instructions to build C3PO and R2-D2 (Star Wars characters – but you knew that!): https://frugalfun4boys.com/lego-star-wars-c3po-building-instructions/

Download your free Outer Space Maths Booklet (17 pages) for ages 7-11 from:
https://matr.org/resource-outer-space-maths-activity-book/

Explore these space-themed activities at the NASA website. For example, "Packing for a L-o-o-o-ng Trip to Mars", which has a planning activity involving maths, science and a box, plus lots of facts about space travel and planet Mars!

Build your own bottle rocket using a plastic bottle, white vinegar and bicarbonate of soda! (Adult supervision needed) Instructions are here:

And finally...

Here are all five verses of the poem 'Ode to a Code' from the book Ilnoblet Elmer and the Alien Water Thieves.

Can you identify what the special words, numbers and patterns might be that helped to chase away the Mootilokygogrifies? Hint: there are at least four different types of things you need to look for in the poem.

Ode to a Code

One, Three, Six, Ten.

Oh Moot, you are denned

By this very pen.

You are bizarre,

Oh creature from afar,

You are on our radar.

Fifteen, Twenty-One, Twenty-Eight.

You are going to be 'late',

We are sealing your fate.

Thirty-Six, Forty-Five, Fifty-Five.

You will writhe, not alive.

For you, no reviver.

This ode is scribed

At noon, you cartoon.

You will be denied,

We know your tune,

You will be redder soon,

Oh fried monster balloon.

Will Street Street

Sixty-Six, Seventy-Eight, Ninety-One.

They will refer to you as 'none',

We will tell your mum.

One Hundred and Five, One

Hundred and Twenty.

You will not be plenty,

Nothing will set you free,

No plea, no decree, no fee.

One Hundred and

Thirty-Six, no tricks.

You are in a fix.

You cannot run,

Here is my prediction:

With one 'pop', you be gone!

You can check the answers at the back of the book!
